

DEMOGRAFIA ELECTORAL

Genaro Mosquera Castellanos

Tomando como referencia un estudio elaborado por Adolfo G. Fabregat, denominado “Red Flags on Venezuela's Electoral Roll,” se ha reelaborado y complementado dicho estudio para contribuir a la fácil comprensión del lector la problemática demográfica que tiene con ver con el proceso electoral venezolano, y hacer algunos comentarios de carácter estadístico que faciliten la interpretación de los datos y se comprendan con mas clairidad las limitaciones que tiene el Registro Electoral Permanente bajo control gubernamental, el cual pretende ser utilizado como referencia oficial para operar las elecciones presidenciales programadas para fines del año 2006.

A cada interpretación o análisis le hemos colocado los respectivos vínculos para que se facilite la búsqueda detallada directamente en la fuente del registro, de tal modo que aquellas personas que deseen profundizar el análisis de la data lo hagan fácilmente.-

El total de votantes en Venezuela, según el Registro Electoral Permanente (REP) para el año 2006 según el Consejo Electoral Nacional (CNE), es de 14.849.127 electores, el cual representa un incremento del 23% sobre los electores registrados tres años antes, es decir, en el año 2003. Este significativo incremento es 10 veces mas grande que el incremento registrado oficialmente en el periodo 2000-2003 el cual fue del 1,9%. El 23% antes mencionado, representa aproximadamente 2,2 millones de nuevos votantes tal y como se puede observar en el cuadro adjunto, cuyos detalles se pueden explorar en el site: (<http://fabregat.us/TotalesPorEstado.htm>).

Este cuadro discrimina el total de electores distribuido por entidad federal, por año del registro y separa a venezolanos (V) y a extranjeros (E), calculando para cada nivel el porcentaje de cambio nacionalmente y para estado.

Es de hacer notar que los cambios de mayor relevancia a nivel de los venezolanos se ubican en los Estados: Amazonas, Anzoátegui, Apure, Barinas, Bolívar, Cojedes, Delta Amacuro, Yaracuy, Vargas y Zulia. Es de especial consideración que en los Extranjeros se aprecia cambios mas que significativos que llegan al 88,23% en su conjunto, pero son de especial relevancia los Estados: Delta Amacuro, Portuguesa, Trujillo y Zulia.

Al ordenar la edad de los votantes según fecha de nacimiento vemos que existen 39.000 votantes cuya edad excede a los 100 años. En efecto, es sorprendente, puesto que en los Estados Unidos de Norteamérica, se estima de acuerdo a las proyecciones citadas por Abey Wagner (1)(<http://www.insweb.com/learningcenter/articles/life-living-longer.htm>) existyten 49.000 personas cuya edad están sobre los 100 años. Es de hacer notar, que haciendo la respectiva comparación relativa, que los Estados Unidos, tienen una población 10 veces más grande que la de Venezuela y la Esperanza de Vida es mucho mayor. También el REP, contiene miles de personas que han muerto y probablemente todavía estén votando e incluso “cobrando” en el Seguro Social.

Al tomar una muestra de la frecuencia de votantes por año y mes de nacimiento se observa una distribución estadísticamente, así por ejemplo, se puede observar en la siguiente tabla:

|------------|-----|
| 1899-12-30 | 14 |
| 1899-12-31 | 3 |
| 1900-1-1 | 631 |
| 1900-1-2 | 22 |
| 1900-1-3 | 13 |

Se puede observar con mayor detalle en la siguiente fuente:

<http://fabregat.us/Between100-105/CNE-100-105-10001-10500.html>

En la tabla anterior se puede apreciar que los nacidos en enero de 1900 son 631, lo cual representa 20 veces el promedio de otros años y meses cercanos lo cual induce a pensar que las cifras no son confiables.

Por otra parte, parece poco verosímil que exista un grupo de personas de tan avanzada edad en el registro cuya fecha de nacimiento se inician en 1831?, en efecto veamos:

Es interesante conocer que existe un numero importante de personas con fecha de nacimiento: 00-00-00 y existen cientos de cédulas de identidad duplicadas cuya única diferencia es la V (venezolanos) o la E (extranjeros). Así mismo, existen cientos de personas con doble cedula de identidad. Por otra parte, se da el caso de innumerables nombres y apellidos repetidos los cuales tiene exactamente la misma fecha de nacimiento lo cual sugiere errores intencionados en el registro.. El analista de estos datos reseña un ejemplo patético, el Señor Abou Ammar Essam tiene dos cedulas de identidad de diferente numero con la misma fecha de nacimiento (enero 4 de 1971) y obviamente, vota en dos lugares diferentes. Por supuesto, que se pueden haber nacionalizado con las facilidades que ha otorgado el gobierno, pero ellos persisten en el registro y ciertamente pueden votar dos veces. Este patrón estadístico se puede observar de manera reiterada en miles de electores, ello es fácilmente comprobable, por ejemplo veamos la siguiente muestra:

Todo este análisis aunque parcial muestra las limitaciones del REP para ser aceptado como válido para una elección presidencial. Se deriva de este planteamiento que el REP ni siquiera debe ser validado o auditado, Es necesario disponer de un REP actualizado y confiables razón por la cual no es posible aceptar este registro para ir a unas elecciones presidenciales.

En otro orden de ideas es interesante examinar los datos correspondientes a la distribución de la población venezolana, tomando en cuenta el crecimiento demográfico y su distribución por grupos de edades, separando convenientemente a pesar que las estadísticas califican de jóvenes a los de menos de 19 años, pero que permiten con buen grado de aproximación separar a los que tienen derecho a votar bien sean adultos o personas de la tercera edad..

En primer lugar, veamos el crecimiento población durante el periodo 1881 al 2001. Allí podremos observar un crecimiento de la población tal y como lo podemos ver en el siguiente gráfico:

Fuente; ULA,

Luego podemos observar durante los últimos censos el crecimiento porcentual de los jóvenes hasta los 19 años el cual oscila entre el 51% y el 48% de acuerdo a la tabla oficial siguiente:

| JOVENES | | | | | |
|-------------|----------|----------|----------|----------|----------|
| (0-19 AÑOS) | | | | | |
| 1.941,00 | 1.950,00 | 1.961,00 | 1.971,00 | 1.981,00 | 1.990,00 |
| 51.3 | 51.8 | 54.7 | 56.4 | 51.3 | 47.9 |

Así mismo podemos observar el porcentaje correspondiente a los denominados adultos:

| ADULTOS | | | | | |
|--------------|----------|----------|----------|----------|----------|
| (20-59 AÑOS) | | | | | |
| 1.941,00 | 1.950,00 | 1.961,00 | 1.971,00 | 1.981,00 | 1.990,00 |
| 43.0 | 43.7 | 40.9 | 38.9 | 43.4 | 46.1 |

Y por último a los viejos o las de la tercera edad:

| VIEJOS | | | | | |
|-----------------|----------|----------|----------|----------|----------|
| (60 AÑOS Y MAS) | | | | | |
| 1.941,00 | 1.950,00 | 1.961,00 | 1.971,00 | 1.981,00 | 1.990,00 |
| 5.7 | 4.5 | 4.4 | 4.7 | 5.3 | 6. |

Se ha considerado el peso de cada grupo etario en la distribución de la población estimada para el año 2005, de tal manera que hemos tomado un primer escenario con los valores que representan a los jóvenes en relación a la población total y que se estima en un 47,9 %. Para los adultos en edad de votar se eligió el 46,1% y el 6% correspondiente a los viejos o personas de la tercera edad.

Los votantes para el año 2003 según el REP eran un total de 11.936.362,00. Las estimaciones de la población según el INE para el año 2005 reflejan un total de. 26.577.423 habitantes. Si se distribuye la población de acuerdo a la estructura de cada grupo etario, es decir, jóvenes, adultos y viejos para esa población se obtienen los siguientes valores:

|-------|---------------|
| 47,90 | 12.730.585,62 |
| 46,10 | 12.252.192,00 |
| 6.0 | 1.594.645,38 |

Es decir, 13 millones aproximadamente de menores de edad, 12,2 millones de adultos votantes y 1,6 millones de viejos. En otras palabras, la población venezolana envejeció a tal punto que los viejos representan para el año 2005 la bicoca del 13% de los jóvenes, los adultos el 96% de los jóvenes, por lo tanto existen 13.846.838 votantes sobre 13 millones de niños. No se requiere ser demógrafo para concluir que la Venezuela actual no puede haber envejecido a esa velocidad cuando la esperanza de vida está un poco mas arriba de los 70 años y, lo mas impactante es que los votantes potenciales superan los niños por casi millón y medio y que para el registro electoral permanente de las elecciones del año 2003 al presente se incorporan al Registro Electoral nada mas ni nada menos que DOSMILLONES DOSCIENTOS MIL DE NUEVOS VOTANTES.

Seria entonces interesante que nuestros demógrafos pudieran estudiar este fenómeno de crecimiento para modificar todos sus indicadores demográficos incluyendo la pirámide poblacional. Es obvio, que se hace extremadamente sospechoso el Registro Electoral Permanente y por supuesto, ante esta realidad, la pregunta es evidente, ¿ como se puede ir a un proceso transparente con las limitaciones e incertidumbre que tiene el REP?.-

Las estimaciones que se han usado corresponden a fuentes oficiales y pueden ser consultadas en las paginas web referenciadas. Finalmente se inserta a continuación un cuadro por lo demás sugerente que revela la estructura poblacional del país.-

(1) Living Longer And Life Insurance Rates

By Abbey Wagner, InsWeb

Back in the "olden days" it was an unusual feat when someone lived to the "old age" of 70 or 80. These days, with all our modern advances in medicine, treatment, and our healthier lifestyles, more and more people are living longer and enjoying their good health well into their golden years. Studies show that over 49,000 people nationwide are over 100 years old, up dramatically from just a decade ago. According to U.S. census data, the number of people that live to 100 or beyond is expected to double each decade, and the fastest growing population in the U.S. these days is people that are 85 and older. And many aging experts say they are surprised every day

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control, in 2000, the average life expectancy for American males was 74, up four years from 1980 (when the previous tables were written). For American females, the average life expectancy in 2000 was 79 years, up two years from the 1980 tables. In addition, the annual improvement in male mortality of the general U.S. population has improved by 2 percent in the age group 55-59, and has improved by 1.2 percent for females of the same age group.

Living Longer And Life Insurance Rates

By Abbey Wagner, InsWeb

Back in the "olden days" it was an unusual feat when someone lived to the "old age" of 70 or 80. These days, with all our modern advances in medicine, treatment, and our healthier lifestyles, more and more people are living longer and enjoying their good health well into their golden years. Studies show that over 49,000 people nationwide are over 100 years old, up dramatically from just a decade ago. According to U.S. census data, the number of people that live to 100 or beyond is expected to double each decade, and the fastest growing population in the U.S. these days is people that are 85 and older. And many aging experts say they are surprised every day by the number of people that are able to live without assistance well into their 90s.

What does this have to do with your life insurance rates? Well not only is prolonged life and good health good news for America's seniors from a lifestyle perspective, it is also good news from a life insurance perspective. Insurance companies will be adopting new actuarial tables that incorporate new mortality levels within the next 5 or 6 years, many sooner. Actuarial and mortality tables are utilized by life insurance companies to compute the probability of death by a certain age. In other words, they tell life insurance companies how long you are expected to live on average based on your age and sex.

For the first time in over 20 years, the American Academy of Actuaries has revised the table to reflect America's trend toward living longer. The new tables increase the maximum (theoretical) life expectancy to 120 years, not because actuaries actually think many people will reach the age of 120, but because this is the absolute highest age that it is theoretically possible for a person to reach these days.

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control, in 2000, the average life expectancy for American males was 74, up four years from 1980 (when the previous tables were written). For American females, the average life expectancy in 2000 was 79 years, up two years from the 1980 tables. In addition, the annual improvement in male mortality of the general U.S. population has improved by 2 percent in the age group 55-59, and has improved by 1.2 percent for females of the same age group.

Longer life spans mean that the mortality and expense charges you pay for coverage should be lower, which should in turn lower your premiums. Some insurance companies are claiming that the new tables will allow them to drop their rates by as much as 30 percent once they are adopted. Insurance companies benefit from the longer life spans of their consumers because they don't have to set aside as much to cover death benefit payoff, so these savings should be passed on to their consumers. Many are estimating that most insurance companies will be putting aside approximately 15 percent less than they currently do to cover death benefits.

While life insurance companies have until 2009 to implement the new actuarial tables, many will do it sooner rather than later. That means it is especially important to examine your policy frequently, and compare rates of various companies to see who has adopted the new tables and are therefore able to offer lower rates.
